

Hospitality Report - Chloe McNeill

As this hasn't been a normal year in any way
I found it hard to find what words I could say

We've done so little, in a usual sense
And my thoughts of the theatre are all in the past tense

I know I'm not alone, in wishing this year gone
And finding some way forward for 2021

But thank you to those who have kept us afloat
And a thank you to you, who've read what I wrote!

I know Front of House isn't the most exciting place,
Selling sweets and ice creams instead of being on stage

You always rise to the challenge, you're always there,
Whether it's one person or 100, we know that you care.

We've had a year out, a year away from the throng
And by this time next year, we'll all be back where we belong.

The year you've had off, reading, walking and baking
Will mean that you're ready to get back to coffee making.

So my message is a simple one, to you all, my friends.
I simply can't wait to see you again.
